

This 365-day journey entails going through Scripture and seeing how God has dealt with loss in the lives of His people. I use personal accounts of the pain and losses God has allowed me to encounter in my own life, as well as in the lives of clients I counsel in my practice. In addition I use principles of grief used in my 20 years of counseling work. The purpose of the journey is (1) to point people to Jesus, so that they can know Him in a deeper way as they go through their pain and losses. (2) to help people in their times of grief to get to a place of reinvestment in the things of God, and (3) to pour out on others what God has shown me in my journey. The Scripture presented are designed to be read before the daily entry. The questions at the end of the entry are designed to be pondered by the reader and bring him into an encounter with God.
